OUTLINES.

The President reviewed at Oyster Bay yesterday the largest fleet of America warships ever assembled; every State in the Union was represented by a ship of war——Citizens of Abbeville, S. C., did not like the language of colored president of College and requested him to leave the town——The cruiser Boston went aground on Orcas Island in the San Juan group, but was pulled off apparently uninjured——Paul O. Stensland, defaulting president and manager of the Milwaukee Avenue State Bank, of Chicago, was captured yesterday in Morocco——John D. Hood, society man, clubman and horse fancier, committed suicide at his home near Warrenton, Va., no cause is known for the dreadful deed——The Pennsylvania Railroad Company has sold part of its holdings of Baltimore and Ohio and Norfolk and Western shares; the Pennsylvania Company claims that the shares were originally purchased for the purpose of abolishing secret rebates and preferences and not for the object of controlling the bituminous coal traffic——Democrats of the Sixth (Ga.) Congressional district re-nominated Charles L. Bartlett for Congress—In the yacht race at Marblehead, Mass., America won a decisive victory over Gremany in the first race for the series for the Roosevelt cup—Labor Day observed at Richmond, Va., by a parade of labor organizations and by athletic sports and other diversions——In the fight for the lightweight championship at Goldfield, Nev., between Gans and Nelson, the fight was awarded to the former in the forty-second round on a foul; Nelson had been repeatedly warned during the contest as to his mode of fighting; by his victory Gans wins the lightweight championship of the world——Cotton exports show an increase of over $21,000,000 over last year; the quantity exported was about 700,000,000 less than in 1905 while the value was $21,000,000.

AN EXPLANATION.

In consequence of the inexcusable failure of one-half of the operating force of our linotype machines to report for duty last night we are compelled to print the Star this morning with our usual quantity of news matter greatly reduced. It is unnecessary for us to say more than that our readers cannot possibly regret the occurrence as much as we do.

To be consistent our President must now spell it Ruff Rider.

She fixt her eyes on me. I lookt at her. Then I kiss her. This is now the Roosevelt way.

The Georgia Democrats must have believed every word Hoke Smith said about his opponents.

Anyhow, the Atlanta Journal and the Constitution can each continue to claim the "largest circulation."

That Charlotte postal clerk who beat his wife so brutally ought to be run through the cancelling machine.

As a rule, the trouble with banks is the same as that which attends cramp colic—it comes from the inside.

President Roosevelt has decided to adopt the fool style of spelling for the executive department. Just like him. Anything for a change.

The record of the Hon. E. Spencer Blackburn is as malodorous as that of a Chicago egg before it is "reprocessed."

The newspapers pronounce Col. Bryan's Madison Square utterances "a great speech" but to Col. Roosevelt it must look more like a bill of indictment.

A Raleigh man is advertising in the News and Observer for a "competent Sewer man." He made a great mistake in not sending his ad to an Atlanta paper.

The Washington Post, noting that Philadelphia women are now giving "porch parties," thinks it shows that society in that town has advanced several steps. But we think it shows that Philadelphia society is getting dangerously near the gutter.

IN HONOR OF LABOR

Celebration of National Holiday Wilmington and the Several Resorts Yesterday

UNIONS AT GREENVILLE

Old-Fashioned Picnic, Fish Fry and Oyster oRast at Tietgen's Point—Very Dull Day in the City—Baseball Games.

For a number of reasons the observance of Labor Day in Wilmington yesterday was not so general as in former years. The celebration by organized labor was not public as formerly owing to the differences with the Consolidated Company and except with the unions there was no set programme for the day. However, there was a suspension of business with all public institutions and many of the private places of business closed for a part of the day.

The celebration by the trades unions, following a parade in the city yesterday morning, was at Tietgen's Point, on Greenville Sound, which was reached by private conveyance exclusively. The pradade formed at 9 o'clock at Front and Chesnut streets, headed by a band and platoon of police and proceeded in order along the route prescribed, returning to Front and Chesnut streets, where carriages, wagonettes, etc., were in waiting to convey members of the unions and a few friends to Greenville. The parade was very creditable, all things being taken into account, and the procession was watched by many from the sidewalks and other points of vantage.

There were more than a hundred of the organized workmen at the Sound and the day passed off most pleasantly for all who attended. An old-fashioned basket picnic, fish fry and oyster roast were enjoyed during the day, the spread having been in a beautiful oak grove on the water front. The remainder of the day was given over to the cultivation of good fellowship, anecdote and pleasant social intercourse. Owing to the rain in the afternoon the series of athletic sports that had been arranged for the day had to be postponed. Justice Bornemann was along—no public assemblage is complete without him—and he made a brief address which was heartily applauded by all present. The party returned to the city well pleased with the outing.

In the city there was very little doing in the afternoon. Many people had gone out of the city on the various outings and excursions and the streets presented a rather deserted appearance. The reduced rate of 25 cents for the round trip to Wrightsville Beach had the effect of taking many to that pleasurable resort and Lumina was alive with people during the early afternoon. The threatening weather in the early evening, however, diminished the crowds at night. The railroad offices had half holiday in the afternoon and that served to liven up the streets somewhat, but otherwise it was a very dull day that people in the city spent. The baseball games at Hilton in the afternoon attracted about three hundred people, who were later forced to beat a hasty retreat before a threatening storm. All in all Labor Day was about the holiday that all of them are—enjoyable for those imbued with the spirit and not especially noticeable by those who do not sit up and take notice.

DEATH OF MRS. MANNING.

Remains Taken to Raleigh—A Grave Offence.

Raleigh, N. C., Sept. 3.—Mrs. Pattie Lewis Manning, wife of D. I. H. Manning, and a daughter of Dr. R. H. Lewis, of this city, died at Chapel Hill today after only a few days illness. The remains will be brought here for interment tomorrow. Dr. Manning and Miss Lewis were married in this city last April.

Charles Starling, a white man, who runs a soft drink shop here, was sent to jail this afternoon under $1,000 bond for trial in the Superior Court on a charge of criminal assault on Virginia A. McDonald, a thirteen-year-old girl, who was left in his care several months by her mother while she was out of the city.

Quick Sailing Record.

The schooner Emma S. Lord, 300 tons, Capt. George E. Erskine, arrived at Southport, light, Sunday morning from Fajardo, Porto Rico. She made the passage in the remarkably short period of seven days which establishes a new record for the time of year between the two ports. The Lord will receive cargo of lumber here.

FIREMAN INJURED

Fireman A. C. Peterson, of Hose Reel Company No. 1, at Fourth Street Bridge, was seriously and perhaps permanently injured as the result of a most unusual accident Sunday night at 11:45 o'clock. Mr. Peterson was seated at the corner of the engine house next to Fourth street market, leaning back against the side of the building, his feet on another chair, when an electric light pole, half a square distant, fell across the trolley wire, charged the concrete sidewalk extending from there to the engine house and knocked the fireman headlong to the pavement. He jumped up but was knocked down again by the current and could not escape the shock until he was thrown in an alley off the charged pavement. He shouted to his comrades and they came to his assistance as speedily as possible, but it was some time before he could be restored to possession of his faculties. His entire left side was paralyzed and even until now he has not regained the use of his left arm from the hand to the shoulder. The accident was indeed remarkable and has puzzled the electricians who repaired the damage and Dr. F. H. Russell, who is attending Mr. Peterson.

It is not known what caused the pole to fall. The trolley car had passed some minutes before and the pole seemed to snap off just below the ground on an opposite corner from the fire house. The lamp was broken all to pieces and the ground was lit up across the street by the contact of the heavily charged light and trolley wires with the damp earth. As soon as the power house could be notified the current was cut off that circuit until the break could be repaired. Mr. Peterson was able to be up yesterday, but is still under the care of Dr. Russell.

MANIAC STILL AT LARGE.

Officers Returned From Man Hunt Sunday—Were Unsuccessful.

Constable Savage, Deputy Sheriff Cox and Deputy Sheriff Smith returned Sunday morning from Federal Point having been unable to effect the capture of Fred Hill, the negro maniac armed with a gun and an axe and defying the officers to apprehend him. Hill crossed over the river into Brunswick county early Sunday morning, but yesterday he returned according to the report and the search will be resumed to-day. Hill is wrapped in a heavy overcoat, has on a derby hat and is barefooted. He is said to have evaded the officers by climbing trees and covering himself with leaves in the dense underbrush. The whole community is alarmed over the negro's presence in the community and will assist the officers in any way possible.

Mr. John R. Owen Dead.

Mr. L. V. Martin returned Sunday from Mullins, S. C., whither he was summoned last week on the sad mission of attending the funeral of his brother-in-law, Mr. John R. Owen, formerly of this city, who passed away at his home in Mullins Saturday after an illness of several weeks with typhoid fever. Mr. Owen was well and most favorably known in Wilmington and throughout this section having travelled for Mr. W. B. Cooper and later for the D. L. Gore Company. He was a young man of splendid character and was universally popular. The news of his death was received with sincere regret by very many friends. Besides Mrs. Martin, the deceased is also survived by a brother, Mr. Owens, travelling salesman for Stone & Co., of this city. All the bereaved ones have the tenderest sympathy of many friends in their sorrow.

Died in Savannah, Ga.

A telegram yesterday to Mr. H. M. Foard conveyed the sad news to many friends in this city that the wife of his nephew, Mr. Roger F. Paddison, passed away at 8 o'clock Sunday morning at their home, 709 Barnard street, Savannah, Ga., after a short illness. Mrs. Paddison was Miss Eddie Wade, of St. Louis, Mo., and Mr. Paddison is a native of this county, a son of Mr. Jno. R. Paddison, now of Mount Airy. The funeral of Mrs. Paddison will be conducted at Mt. Airy this afternoon at 1 o'clock and the remains will be laid to rest there. Many friends in this section deeply sympathize with the bereaved ones in their sorrow.

NEGRO DIED IN JAIL

Ed. Reavis, Charged With Burglary, Found Dead In His Cell Sunday

HE HAD CONSUMPTION

Fellow Prisoners Rapped For Jailer Who Found, On Investigation, the Negro Dead on His Hands and Knees—Another Ill.

Ed. Reavis, a middle-aged colored man confined since the 11th., of last April in the county jail awaiting trial for his life on the charge of burglary, died in his cell between 2 and 3 o'clock Sunday morning. Dr. C. D. Bell viewed the body and stated that the negro's death was probably due to consumption. He had been sick for some time and had been under the care of Dr. W. D. McMillan, the county physician, but no one had any idea that his conditon was serious, else he would have been transferred to the hospital. Between the hours named Jailer Capps was awakened by a rap from some of the prisoners who informed him that there was something wrong with Reavis. Going to investigate the jailer discovered that the negro had fallen out of his hammock and was on his hands and knees as if in the act of crawling back to his resting place when death came.

Reavis was committed to jail April 11th., on a charge of having entered the house of Mr. Calvin Gore, at Ninth and Orange streets. It will be recalled that Mr. Gore saw and recognized Reavis and as he fled out the door, threw a club at him. Reavis jumped to the street and was joined by another negro. Caesar Bullock, who was evidently on watch. Both were arrested the next day and placed in jail after preliminary trial before the Mayor. At a late term of the court true bills for burglary were found against each of the negroes and both would have gone on trial for their lives together at the approaching term of court, had Reavis lived. The negro Bullock, who is left in jail, is also very sick and is said to be suffering with the same dread malady which caused the death of Reavis. Reavis has a number of relatives in the city and the body was turned over to them for burial yesterday afternoon.

TRIP TO THE FORT.

Excursion Yesterday a Delightful Success—Kindness of Officers.

Nearly 200 persons availed themselves of the pleasures of the trip to Southport and Fort Caswell on the steamer Sea Gate under the auspices of Bladen Street M. E. church yesterday and each and every patron of the trip speaks of the excursion in most enthusiastic terms. Barring a slight accident by the blowing out of a steam pipe on the way down, which damage was quickly repaired, the trip down was without incident and Southport was reached in good time for lunch which was enjoyed in the fine grove on the water front. From Southport the party proceeded over to the Fort and were received with the greatest hospitality there. Rev. A. J. Parker, the pastor of the church, who was in charge of the party, says that too much cannot be said in praise of the officers and men of the post. The visitors were received with cordiality in the extreme and were shown over the giant fortifications by the soldiers every one of whom was at pains to make the visitors feel at home.

For the benefit of the excursionists a fine exhibition of baseball was played between the teams of the 19th. and 31st. Companies, in which the first named won by a score of 9 to 4. Sergeant Grimes arranged this particularly interesting feature for the visitors. Later the post band, an excellent organization of 20 pieces in chafge of Sergeant Johnson, gave an excellent open-air concert. To all of the officers and men the excursionists feel under lasting obligations for a day most entertainingly and profitably spent. The party returned to the city about 7 o'clock.

Their Infant Son Dead.

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Peterson will sympathize with them in the death of their infant son, Luther Homer, aged 10 months and eight days, which occurred yesterday at the family home, 219 Brunswick street. The funeral took place at 5:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon from the residence and the interment was in Bellevue cemetery.

MAYOR'S COURT

Comparatively Few Cases Tried by the Mayor Yesterday Noon—Young White Man Charged With Vagrancy—One Sentenced.

The session of the police court yesterday was not specially interesting. There were not more than half a dozen cases and all these were trifling. Joe Williams, colored, only rose to the dignity of a road sentence. He was found drunk and down by Officer W. J. Howard and was given 15 days.

Julius Sandlin, colored, for trotting a horse he was driving around Front and Princess streets, was discharged with a warning.

John H. Hall and Jesse Hennigan, two colored boys arrested by Officer Newton for skylarking around Front and Princess streets, were ordered held in the guard house for a day or two.

George D. Martin, a strange young man, neatly dressed and well spoken, was charged by Officer J. J. Moore with vagrancy. He had been loitering on North Fourth street for several days without visible means of support and the officer felt justified in bringing him in, at least for an explanation. Martin said he came here from Hoboken, N. J., on a vessel and had money to live on till Friday. Since he had spent all he had, he had been looking for a job and had just found it at the box factory. The Mayor gave him an opportunity to get to work at once.

David Lewis, a young white man employed on the government dredge Ajax, tried to paint the town a vermillion hue Saturday night and was unfortunate enough to fall into the hands of Sergeant C. W. Woolard. He proved, however, that it was his first offence and he was let off with $5 including the costs.

FORT FISHER REUNION.

Movement for Survivors' Association Heartily Endorsed.

Currie, N. C., Sept. 1.—We, Fort Fisher veterans in this section, do heartily endorse the movement to meet in Wilmington Sept. 18th., and form the Fort Fisher Survivors' Association and we are coming and suggest that the sons of the survivors go also and at the same time form an association to meet when we are all dead and gone. We hope the citzens of your city will sympathize with us in our movement. It means much to your city in the near future. The men who are coming to your city, Sept. 18th., risked their lives in its defence and left their comrades slain on the beach. We hope all the Fisher boys will be on hand the 18th of September. W. L. NUNALEE,
Member of Company A., 2nd Battalion under command of Col French.

THE RATTLERS CHAMPIONS.

Won From Giants in Baseball Game Yesterday Four to Two.

Nearly four hundred people were at Hilton Park yesterday afternoon to witness the final games in the City Baseball League, the first having been an exhibition between the Market Street Giants and the second having been for the championship of the League, between the Giants and the Seventh Street Rattlers. The last named won by a score ofwwwww Y0 are declared the winners of the handsome pennant offered by A. G. Spalding. In the exhibition game the Giants named won by a score of 5 to 4 and of the championship game were two base hits at opportune stages of the game by Brinkley and Alderman. The last game had to be called on account of darkness hastened by a very threatening cloud in the northwest.

After the games the Rattlers were the guests of Mr. L. L. Child at a feast of elegant refreshments at Bryant's.

FACTORY SHUT DOWN

Engine Wrecked Sunday at Plant of Independent Ice Company In This City

CYLINDER HEAD BLEW OUT

To Prevent Ice Famine, the Frozen Article is Being Imported Here—Heavy Machinery Ordered By Express to Repair Damage.

As the result of the blowing out of a cylinder head, the engine at the Independent Ice Company's plant at Seventh and Brunswick streets, was wrecked Sunday afternoon about 3 o'clock, in consequence of which the factory will be shut down for ten days, entailing a loss of more than $2,000 upon the company and no end of inconvenience upon them in supplying their most necessary product to the people during the heated period. New parts for the engine have been ordered shipped at great expense by Southern Express and until it arrives, the present supply of ice will be supplemented by what the company can import, the first of such consignments consisting of two car loads having arrived last night from Rocky Mount.

The cause of the accident is not known except that the plant had been taxed to its greatest capacity to supply the unusually heavy demands of the local trade on Saturday and Sunday. The maximum pressure was on all the machines Sunday afternoon when suddenly the cylinder head flew off with a loud report and the engine was literally wrecked in consequence of everything going awry when the cylinder head was gone. The engine room was filled with steam and there was much confusion at the time, but fortunately no one was hurt. As soon as possible the steam was shut off and an inventory was taken of the damage. Nearly every part of the engine will have to be replaced except the base and orders were at once telegraphed to the factory at York, Pa., for duplicates. The factory telegraphed at first that the parts were on hand and would be shipped at once by Express but later another telegram came stating that it was found that the parts on hand were too small and it would require until Thursday to adjust them for the Wilmington plant. They will be shipped at once and in the meantime machinists are at work night and day repairing all the damage possible so that there will be no delay in installing the machinery as soon as it arrives.

One of the large machines at the Worth ice factory, Second and Campbell streets, now owned by the Independent people, had fortunately not been dismantled for transfer to the Chadbourn plant as had been expected, and it was immediately started up in order to prevent a famine in the city in case outside sources could not be depended upon. As much as ten cars of ice will be purchased outside and sold to Wilmington patrons at a loss to the company, so as to not inconvenience the public by reason of the accident. It is hoped to have the plant running again by the middle of next week.

LOCAL DOTS.

—No local markets are printed in the Star this morning, the Chamber of Commerce having been closed yesterday on account of Labor Day.

—The steamer Wilmington carried a large number of colored people to Carolina Beach yestereday for their Labor Day celebration. The crowds in the main were very orderly.

—The laying of the tile in The Orton lobby has been completed and decorators from Charlotte will be here in a few days to begin otherwise beautifying the hotel. The work will require several weeks for completion.

—Fayetteville Observer: "The Republican Executive Committee, in session at Greensbboro Saturday, nominated David J. Lewis, of Columbus, for Judge, to run against Hon. C. C. Lyon in this district, and R. S. White to run against Hon. N. A. Sinclair for Solicitor."

—Fayetteville Observer 3rd: "The C. W. Lyon cleared this afternoon, carrying the following passengers: State Auditor B. F. Dixon, Mr. Edgar McCullock and Miss Clara Mun, going to White Oak. Dr. Dixon speaks at White Oak to-morrow, in place of Senator Simmons, who was unable to fill his engagement."

THE CONSERVATIVE VIEW.

We have read with unusual interest the comment of the Richmond News Leader on the speech delivered by Mr. Bryan in Madison Square Garden to an audience variously estimated at ten to twenty thousand. From the editorial referred to we reproduce the following striking paragraphs:

"The most important part of Mr. Bryan's speech, which evidently he thought out carefully and prepared laboriously, is the definite and final abandonment of the free silver and sixteen to one heresies. These being removed, he stands as a possible candidate unobjectionable. Nobody can accuse him now of being radical or regard him as a menace to the business interests and prosperity of the country." * * *

"His declaration in favor of government ownership of railroads is meaningless. It is very cautious and remote and hedged with so many ifs and ands and conditions that as he presents it, it is not a practical question and will not be seriously considered in political discussion. It is opposed to every principle of Democracy, to the very essential and foundation theory of the party, which is against the increase or centralization of power in the hands of the Federal government; but the proposition may be dismissed with a smile as a mere empty and inconsequential theory not likely to become an actual living question within the next ten or fifteen years." * * *

"The real fighting issue Mr. Bryan declares to be the tariff. In that declaration The News Leader and the masses of the Democrats of the country agree with him heartily. Tariff reform and currency reform, both on the same lines, both for the relief of the country from monopoly oppression and the dangers of power concentrated in a platform strong enough and broad enough to fight on and to win on. For our part, speaking as for the conservative and bolting element—the hard-money faction—of the Democratic party, we are entirely willing and ready to accept Mr. Bryan as the party candidate as he stands, unless a better or stronger man develops between now and 1908—which thing may happen."

The author of the above is Mr. A. B. Williams, universally conceded to be one of the most virile and brilliant editorial writers in the South. Not only that, he was one of the Palmer and Buckner band that led the forlorn hope in 1896. But let us repeat what he says now: "For our part, speaking as for the conservative and bolting element—the hard-money faction—of the Democratic party, we are entirely willing and ready to accept Mr. Bryan as the party candidate as he stands, unless a better or stronger man develops between now and 1908—which may happen."

This is the correct Democratic view and is expressed in a straightforward and manly way.

As shown in an editorial reproduced from that paper in The Morning Star of last Saturday, the position of the Charleston News and Courier on the Bryan speech is in line with that of the Richmond News Leader. And the News and Courier is another paper that declined to support Bryan in one of his former campaigns for the Presidency.

NOT A STAND-PATTER.

The Washington Star is a Republican paper, though not rabid in its utterances, and it generally supports the Adminstration policies. But it has the sagacity to see that tariff revision must come, and it prefers to have it come tarough the Republican party. It has this to say of the stand-pat policy of the President:

"What can have come over the spirit of the President's dream? A year or so ago he was on the eve of addressing Congress on the subject of the tariff, but at the last moment reconsidered his decision. At that time he was accounted a revisionist. Certain it is that the standpatters were greatly disturbed and feared the result of a deliverance from him. If there was need of revision then, there is greater need now. The inequalities of that day have grown since, and they grow every day. But now the President does not see them. His attention is fixed on other things, and he mentions them. On the subject of the tariff the man of haste and energy talks Spanish. He says manana— tomorrow."

The American Monthly Review of Reviews for September is one of the most attractive yet issued. The table of contents is full and varied, embracing articles on many leading topics by eminent authors. This magazine is now in its thirty-fourth volume and improves with age. Price, $2.50 per year. Address, Review of Reviews Co., 13 Astor Place, New York City.

CURRENT COMMENT.

—After all our boasts that Cuba has been Americanized, it develops that she was only being South Americanized—Atlanta Constitution.

—This is a great age for "reform," but we fear President Ruzvelt is several hundreds years ahead of his time on reformed spelling.—Atlanta Constitution.

—If President Gompers gets the political scalps of Littlefield, Cannon and Longworth, there'll be some eight-hour doings in the next Congress. Atlanta Constitution.

—Possibly Banker Stensland is hiding in Philadelphia, which would relieve Pittsburg of a more or less natural, but unpleasant, suspicion.—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

—The Bryan speech was very much what might have been anticipated, alike in style and matter. It shows in many ways a broader man and a bigger horizon.—Newark News.

—It would be well to waste no more words on Walter Wellman's wisely abandoned pilgrimage to the Pole. It was hugely advertised, but from the first reminded one of the man who sought to shear a pig: what he got was "all cry, and no wool."—Brooklyn Citizen.

—The President has had far more influence on the rules of football than he will have on the rules of spelling. Regarding orthography, the people are "set in their ways" and it takes long for an innovation to harden into custom. The decisions of the board of geographic names are generally disregarded, while the Postoffice directory will often spell the name of a town one way and the town itself another.

—President Roosevelt declares that "the only way" of dealing with the Steel Trust, the Lumber Trust, the Sugar Trust, the Tobacco Trust, and like leading monopolies is "on the lines" of the legislation of the present Congress and its predecessors. On the other hand, plain people have long since discovered that the Trusts cannot be dealt with in that way at all. The only conceivable method of destroying the inordinate power of these rapacious monopolies is in removing the tariff props that support them.—Newburg Register.

—Public Printer Stillings is quoted as saying that it is none of the public's business how words in the public documents are spelled. A fine Czar-like attitude for a public servant, and one of no particular account at that! But, what is to be expected when the head of the administration affects the manners of a Czar in dealing with the public?—Brooklyn Citizen.

"When a chap can watch his girl manipulate a toothpick in public," remarked the urban philosopher, "and not lose any of his admiration for her, then—then—" "Yes?" "Then he's in love."—Pittsburg Post.

"Then," said the reporter, 'I'll say several pretty songs were rendered by Miss Porkingham." "Oh," replied the hostess, "you musn't say 'rendered.' You see, her father made all his money in lard."—Philadelphia Ledger.

"You seem to have a very high regard for your member of Congress." "Yes," answered Farmer Corntossel. "We think well of him. He ain't much of a speaker an' he don't have any ideas. But he takes a fine photograph."—Washington Star.

"I wonder if it's true that it costs so very much to live in New York?" "It may not cost much to live," replied the man who had tried it, "but it costs a lot to make people believe you're living and not merely existing."—Catholic Standard.

PROUDEST ACT OF HIS LIFE

VICTIM OF STRONG DRINK

At Times Suffered The Tortures of the Damned—All is Bright Where Once It was Dark and Dreary.

The Keeley Institute, Greensboro, N. C.:

About three year ago I graduated from your grand and glorious Institution. When I bade you good-bye and wended my way homeward, a well man, words could not express the joy, thankfulness and enthusiasm that filled my soul. For ten long years I was a victim of strong drink, and had drained the bowl to its very dregs. At lucid intervals I suffered the tortures of the damned. Only a drunkard can know such suffering. I have not tasted or desired alcohol since I left Keeley. My health is good, my mind is clear. I owe it all, even life itself, to your good Institution. Where all was dark and dreary, now it is bright, and a glorious awakening has come to me. I regard going to your Institute as one of the proudest acts of my life for the following reasons:

First: It cured me of a disease as deadly as the serpents' tooth.

Second: It gave me an opportunity to win back a good name and character, which were trailing in the dust.

Third: It gave back health, mind, and ambition to build up wasted possessions squandered in drink.

Every one, from the manager and physician to the servants, vie with one another to make one's stay both pleasant and profitable. I shall never cease to thank you for the benefits received while at Keeley. It was a case of snatching me as a brand from the eternal burning. I have been successful in business since my reformation.

ACROSTICS AND ANAGRAMS.

They Have Been Known Since the Days of the Psalmist.

We find that the acrostic is the most ancient form of puzzling mankind. Acrostic is Greek for a number of verses the first letters of which form a word, sometimes a name and sometimes a sentence. The final letter may form a word, or, as Addison tells us, the letters will even run down the center of the verses as a seam. The Hebrew poets often made their verses run over the entire alphabet. Twelve of the psalms are written on this plan, the most notable being the One Hundred and Nineteenth. This has twenty-two divisions, or stanzas, corresponding to the twenty-two letters of the Hebrew alphabet. Each stanza is formed of eight couplets, and the first line of each couplet in the first stanza in the original Hebrew begins with the letter aleph, the second commences with beth, the third with gimel, and so on through the alphabet. The English divisions of the psalms are called after the Hebrew letter that began the couplets. It was also customary to compose verses on sacred subjects after the fashion of Hebrew acrostics. This was done with a view to aid memory, and such pieces were called abcedarian hymns.

The riddle is also of ancient origin. The Proverbs of the Bible, or sayings attributed to Solomon, are often in the form of riddles. Was it not the queen of Sheba who proposed riddles to Solomon? The Koran, the scriptural book of the Mohammedans, also contains riddles, as do some books now in existence, written in Arabic and Persian. The ancient Egyptians also propounded riddles, and one of the seven wise men of Greece, who lived in the sixth century B. C., was celebrated for his riddles in verse. Homer, the Greek poet, according to a statement in Plutarch, died of vexation at not being able to solve a riddle. In the middle ages riddles were encouraged for amusement on winter nights in the baronial hall and also in the monastery. In later days some of the most brilliant men of letters contributed to the list of riddles.

The anagram, or transposition of the letters in words or sentences, was much in vogue in Greece in the olden times. The Cabalists, or Jewish doctors, thought that the anagram always pointed out a man's destiny, and if his name written backward or transposed in any way spelled a word with meaning they firmly believed it a revelation. The flatterers of James I. of England proved his right to the British monarchy as the descendant of the mythical King Arthur from his name, Charles James Stuart, which becomes "claims Arthur's seat." The best anagrams are those which have in the new order of letters some signification appropriate to that from which they are formed. When Pilate asked, "Quid est veritas?" (What is truth?) he probably had no idea that his question answered itself, but it did. The transposition made it, "Est vir qui adest" (It is the man who is here). Anagrams were written as early as 250 B. C., and their name comes from the Greek words ana (backward) and gramma (writing).

Where the Lady Was Going.

The ticket agents in the Boston office of our road are greatly troubled by patrons who, when wishing to purchase tickets, lay down a coin and neither tell where they are going nor how many tickets they want. This necessitates one or more questions on the part of the patient agent. One day a little elderly lady approached the window of the office, placing a large family umbrella on the slab, and, after fumbling nervously in her pocketbook, pulled out a quarter and laid it down without a word to the ticket seller.

"Where are you going, madam?" asked the ticket agent.

"Oh, I'm going to the doctor," was the tremulous reply.

An Apt Pupil.

A professor who, when asked a question, was in the habit of saying: "That is a very good point indeed. Look it up for yourself," was once much disgusted with a student who had failed to answer a very simple question. "Mr. Jones," said he, "I'm surprised that you, who are going to teach, cannot answer such an elementary question. Why, what would you do if one of your pupils were to ask it?" "Well, professor," replied the other, "if such a thing had happened before I came here I'm afraid I would have said plainly that I didn't know, but now I think I'd do just as you do and say, 'Look it up, my boy; look it up.'"

No Procrastination.

"Ethel," he whispered, "will you marry me?"

"I don't know, Charles," she replied coyly.

"Well, when you find out," he said, rising, "send me word, will you? I shall be at Mabel Hicks' until 10 o'clock. If I don't hear from you by 10, I'm going to ask her."—London Tit-Bits.

Simplicity.

I am convinced, both by faith and experience, that to maintain oneself on this earth is not a hardship, but a pastime, if we will live simply and wisely, as the pursuits of the simpler nations are still the sports of the more artificial.—Thoreau.

Seems Reasonable.

"What is the correct garb for a surgeon about to perform an operation?"

"A cutaway, I suppose."—Minneapolis Tribune.

I will not be concerned at men's not knowing me; I will be concerned at my own want of ability.—Confucius.

SPIRITS TURPENTINE

—From all over Eastern North Carolina comes news that there is much anxiety among the farmers on account of the conditon of the crops, caused by too much rain.

—The Executive Committee of the trustees of Wake Forest College will meet in a few days to elect a Financial Agent to canvass the the State to raise the $112,500 toward the $150,000 endowment.

—The Dixie Fire Insurance Co., recently chartered for Greensboro, will file its records of organization and take out the license to do business in the State Sept. 3rd. J. B. Blades, of Newbern, is president of the company. The capital is $500,000 and the surplus $250,000.

—The total amount of tobacco sold on the Winston market during the year from September 1st, 1905, to September 1st, 1906, which ended yesterday was 17,092,839 pounds. This vast amount of tobacco was sold for $1,454,776.50. The average price was $8.51 per hundred. The tobacco board of trade will hold its annual meeting tomorrow morning.

—News and Observer: The Democratic county convention met at the court house in Elizabeth City at 3 P. M. Saturday. A large representation of enthusiastic Democrats was present. Mr. C. E. Thompson was elected chairman and Mr. P. Williams secretary. The present incumbents of the various county offices were nominated to succeed themselves. Mr. J. C. B. Eringhaus, member of the last State Legislature, was nominated for the House.

—Robbery from a woman with four children, one a little boy in her arms, took place in the Union depot, Raleigh, Saturday afternon. While there awaiting a train Mrs. J. R. Weaver, of Jamestown, N. C., left her seat for a few minutes and when she returned found that she had been robbed of all she had a little over ten dollars A collection was at once taken up by Policeman W. E. Austin and the amount raised, this sending Mrs. Weaver on her way rejoicing. A little negro boy, believed to be the thief, got away before being caught.

—News and Observer, Sept. 2: Yesterday one Collins was arrested and placed in the guard house, where he still rests upon a warrant issued several days ago, for criminal conduct toward a girl who has been living with him, and whose name was not learned. It seems that Collins has been practicing criminal conduct towards this girl for some time and that she was helpless to defend herself. For several days the police force have been trying to find Collins, but until yesterday he had evaded them. He has been operating a small grocery store on Cabarras street, between Dawson street and the Southern freight depot. It is believed that the charges against him are without much foundation.

—Greenville Reflector: In spite of the rapid work done by the tobacco warehouses and buyers Friday, there was a blocked sale and one house had to hold over to sell this morning, Saturday. The cash paid out by the banks for the one day's breaks was over $20,000. Some parties working in the interest of other markets have started the report that the Greenville market is so overrun that tobacco cannot be readily handled here. This is a mistake. Notwithstanding the immense business of the past week the warehouses and buyers are cleaned up and are in as fine shape for business the coming week as ever. All the tobacco that comes will be promptly handled and the banks have plenty of money to pay for it.

Asheville Citen: Perhaps better than anything else would, the postoffice receipts show the growth of Asheville during the present year in permanent residents and especially the remarkable number of visitors. Last year the receipts from the sale of stamps, box rent and newspaper and periodical postage for the month of August were $4,701.57, considered then very large. This year during the same time the postoffice receipts were $5,494.37, an increase of $792.80 and of 17 per cent., a gain much larger than often recorded in towns even though they are growing fast. The remarkable number of souvenir postal cards sent and the many souvenirs sent home to their friends by visitors are partly responsible for the big postage receipts.

—Bertha Brown, the woman shot in East Raleigh was reported as somewhat improved Saturday, and Dr. Rowland, physician in charge, thinks she has chances for recovery, if blood poisoning or complications do not set in. Police Justice Badger has set September eleventh as the date to hear the case against Wayland Ferrall, charged with the shooting. Ferrall and the woman Irene Vallier are still in the guard house, no bond having been given. Ferrall on Saturday made a charge against Jefferson Coke and a warrant was issued on his complaint charging that Coke had engaged in an affray with Ferrall. Ferrall charges that Coke struck him with a pair of knucks previous to the struggle over the pistol, when Bertha Brown was shot. Coke states that he has proof that no knucks were used, and gave bond for $100 for his appearance.

—Greensboro Telegram: Henry Causey, the 13-year-old son of Mr. Ray Causey, of Guilford College, accidentally shot and probably fatally wounded himself with a 38-calibre pistol about 10 Saturday night. He was out in the yard handling the pistol in a careless manner when it went off, the ball entering his abdomen. Dr. M. F. Fox was immediately summoned to give the suffering lad attention, but the wound was of such a serious nature that he decided that the boy had best be carried to St. Leo's hospital. Dr. Long was communicated with. A few minutes before 1 o'clock Dr. J. W. Long phoned to Superintendent Jones, of the Greensboro Electric Company, for a car to go to the park and meet the boy, who was being brought from Guilford College in a carriage. This was long after the cars were off, but under the circumstances Mr. Jones soon had a car out, and with Mr. J. L. May as motorman they set out to the park. The boy was put aboard and the car was at the hospital in sixteen minutes after leaving the park.

—Charlotte Observer special: A special term of United States Court for the trial of distillers and revenue officers indicted for conspiracy to defraud the government will convene first of present week in Greensboro with Judge James E. Boyd presiding. The work of the term will probably not be commenced before Tuesday morning in order to give witnesses and defendants from the more distant counties time to arrive. It is understood that an effort to have the cases continued will be made, and it is the general impression that the case will not be tried at this term. United States District Attorney A. E. Holton spent several days here the past week getting ready for the trial of the cases.

Assistant District Attorney A. L. Coble, of Statesville, who received his commission a few days ago, appointing him to the positon formerly held by A. H. Price, is also in the city. A number of attorneys, defendants and witnesses will arrive first of present week. Two detectives who worked up the cases are in the city, and will be important witness when the cases are tried.

Charlotte Observer special: Sid H. Nealey, of the supervising architect's office of Washington, arrived Asheville on last Saturday afternon to consult with the custodian and occupants of the government building relative to changes for the enlargement and improvement of the structure as authorized by the last Congress. Before adjournment this year Congress appropriated $50,000 for the enlargement of the building and it is announced that in a few months the plans for the extension of the building will be complete, and the contract let. Mr. Nealey was engaged Saturday in taking measurements of the building and says that there will be no delay in the preparations of plans and commencing of the work. Mr. Nealey said that the government architect desired to dispose of the mattr of enlargements and improvements of various government buildings before taking up the work of designing the 200 and more new buildings authorized by Congress It is expected that by next Spring work will be well under way on the enlargement of the building and that it will be pushed to completion as rapidly as possible.

The Eagle In Scotland.

The eagle has grown scarce in the British isles. An old record states that in the seasons 1831-34, inclusive, no fewer than 171 mature specimens of the eagle, together with fifty-three young and eggs, were destroyed in a single county of Scotland—Sutherland—from which statement one can well imagine the cruel havoc that has been wrought in the ranks of a once very common bird of prey. No one denies that the eagle is destructive to game and lambs, but it seems a pity that so noble a bird should be so utterly wiped out of existence, for the eagle has many interesting associations with the past. In Scotland a century or two back three eagle's feathers were the badge of a chief, two of a chieftain and one of a gentleman, but more interesting still is the fact that the flesh of the eagle was considered in the seventeenth century "a valuable medicine against the gout." The same authority also states that the bird was sometimes eaten by the hardy highlander as part of his ordinary diet.

What Elephants Eat.

All the elephants used in the Indian army as draft animals in the artillery or commissariat or as baggage animals in the transport department are very carefully attended to and in every way treated with the greatest consideration. They are rather expensive to keep, costing about £3 a day, including, of course, the wages of their mahout and grass cutter. They are fed principally on unhusked rice and grass. Of the former they get about 250 pounds and of the latter about 400 per diem. A very large female eats, after the first day or two, about 750 pounds of green fodder in eighteen hours. This is exceeded often by larger tuskers, so that 800 pounds is about the right amount to be placed before a full grown elephant, with a margin to allow for waste. As a good load for an elephant is about 800 pounds, it will be seen that the amount he will eat per day will be as much as he can carry, and this will also be the right proportion for the smaller ones.—London Surprise.

Going to the Theater In Venice.

Going to the theater in Venice is like a fantastic overture to the play and sets one's mood properly in tune. You step into the gondola, which darts at once across a space of half lighted water and turns down a narrow canal between walls which seem to reach more than halfway to the stars. The tiny lantern in the prow sheds no light, is indeed no more than a signal of approach, and you seem to be sliding straight into the darkness. Here and there a lamp shines from a bridge or at the water gate of a house, but with no more than enough light to make the darkness seen. The gondola sways, swerves and is round a sharp corner, and the water rushes against the oar as it swings the keel straight for another plunge forward. You see in flashes.—Arthur Symons in Scribner's.

Admiration.

"There can be no real society where compliment is unknown. I once spent a summer in the country in the very New Englandest part of New England, and I was frantic at the sharp corners of the talk. If I were a bit pale they said, 'Are you sick?' like savages. If I looked in the least fetching I caught them watching me by stealth and turning criminally away if I detected it. To mention my praises in moments of becoming hats or new coiffures would have been a breach of etiquette, and it was a point of honor not to appear to notice a new gown. Heavens! I had three minds to come back to town and wear my rose chiffon in a Broadway car for the sheer joy of being openly admired. There is only one thing more ill bred than staring at a pretty woman—that is not noticing her. There is only one thing better than being admired, and that is being told so. Don't tell me that a man who loves a woman cannot compliment her. If he couldn't society would dissolve. And it would be the man's fault."—Zona Gale in Woman's Home Companion.

THE BREATH OF LIFE

It is a significant fact that the strongest animal of its size, the gorilla also has the largest lungs. Powerful lungs mean powerful creatures. How to keep the breathing organs right should be man's chiefest study. Like thousands of others, Mrs. Ora A. Stephens, of Port Williams O., has learned how to do this. She writes: "Three bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery stopped my cough of two years and cured me of what my friends thought consumption. O, it's grand for throat and lung troubles." YACHT RACE FOR ROOSEVELT CUP

Marblehead, Mass., Sept. 3.—America scored a decisive triumph over Germany in the first race of the series for the Roosevelt cup run off here today. The American yacht Auk, owned by Charles Francis Adams second, treasurer of Harvard University, won the initial contest by a large margin. Vim, owned by Commodore Clark of the American Yacht Club of New York was second, three minutes 23 seconds behind. The third boat to cross the finish line was the German yacht Wannssee Sailing Club, of Kiel, Germany. The fourth yacht was the Caramba, owned by O. H. W. Foster, of the Eastern Yacht Club while Tilly VI., and Gluechauf IV., two German craft, were in fifth and sixth places respectively.

Practically the contest was entirely between Auk and Vim. At no time did the German craft or Caramba become dangerous, although the official expressed desire of the German yachtsmen for plenty of wind was granted.

PUBLIC OPINION CAUSED THE SALE

Pennsylvania Railroad Companies Sells Part of Its Holding In Other Companies

HAD ACHIEVED ITS OBJECT

Stocks Purchased for the Purpose of Abolishing Secret Rebates and Preferences and Not for Object of Controlling Coal Traffic.

(By Wire to The Morning Star.)

Philadelphia, Sept. 3.—An official announcement made today by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company that it has sold a part of its holdings of Baltimore and Ohio and Norfolk and Western shares. These stocks were purchased, some six years ago, it is stated, for the purpose of establishing such relations with the managements of those properties as would incline to join the Pennsylvania Railroad Company in abolishing secret rebates and prefernces. Continuing the statement issued by the company says:

"The desired result having been realized, and the management entertaining no fears that the railroads of the country will ever fall back into the old practices, the directors of the company thought it wise to reduce its ownership in these companies, which had been done by selling approximately one-half of its holdings in each to Messrs. Kuhn Loeb and Company. On account of the allegation, repeatedly made, that the company was seeking to control the tidewater bituminous coal traffic, the directors had taken this action in deference to the present state of public opinion upon such matters although there was no foundation for the charge, and although it was confidently believed that the company was entirely within its legal rights in purchasing and holding these stocks."

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company's holding in the Baltimore and Ohio amounted to $51,573,000 and in the Norfolk and Western $25,830,000.

ODDITIES.

The moth has a fur jacket and the butterfly none.

A squirrel comes down a tree head first and a cat tail first.

Leaves will attract dew when boards, sticks and stones will not.

Corn on the ear is never found with an uneven number of rows.

The dragon fly can devour its own body and the head still live.

A horsefly will live for hours after the head has been pinched off.

Fish, flies and caterpillars may be frozen solid and still retain life.

A horse always gets up fore parts first and a cow directly the opposite.

Some flies thrust their eggs into the bodies of caterpillars, but always in such parts of the body that when the larvae are feeding on the flesh of the foster parent they will not eat into any vital part.

Puns on People's Names.

A little while ago a popular form of social amusement was found in punning on people's names—"Why did So-and-so?" "Because Such-and-such." The game ran riot for a time, and echoes of it are still heard in the outer suburbs. Before those echoes die away a correspondent suggests that we should put it on record that the originator of the fashion was no less notable a person than the Quaker poet, John Greenleaf Whittier. On an anti-slavery lecturer named Mary Grew, visiting Boston in 1871, Whittier wrote a poem, "How Mary Grew," each stanza ending on a variation of the pun—

The world were safe if but a few
Could grow in grace as Mary Grew.

—London Chronicle.

Not In Any County.

The city of St. Louis is not in any county. It is an independent municipality equipped with all the machinery of county and city government. It has its own circuit and criminal courts, its own grand jury, jail, etc. The circuit attorney is the prosecuting officer of St. Louis. Until 1876 St. Louis was the county seat of St. Louis county, but in that year the city was completely separated from the county, so that it is now as independent subdivision of the state. Clayton, a few miles west of the city, is now the courthouse town of St. Louis county.—St. Louis Republic.

YOUR HAT

May Be a Stylish One, But It Makes Trouble.

A man usually buys a hat that's "in style," but the modern hat for men has lots to answer for.

Baldheads are growing more numerous every day. Hats make excellent breeding places for the parasitic germs which sap the life from the roots of the hair.

When your hair begins to fall out and your scalp is full of Dandruff it is a sure sign that these countless germs are busily at work.

There is but one way to overcome the trouble and kill the germs—that way is to apply Newbro's Herpicide to the scalp—it will kill the germs and healthy hair is sure to result.

Cupid In Town

By CONSTANCE D'ARCY MACKAY

Copyright, 1906, by Ruby Douglas

It was a warm morning in midsummer. The sky was intensely blue and the air rife with the smell of dust and heat parched pavements. Fifth avenue seemed as arid as a desert. Houses were closed, their blinds drawn. Maids gossiped in areaways. Instead of the pageantry of carriages which graced the street on winter afternoons there were occasional cabs, lumbering automobiles and buses filled with tourists.

I was strolling along toward the club and devoutly wishing I was any place but in town, when suddenly I espied Honoria Langham. She had come in from a house party on Long Island, and our meeting was the merest accident. I at once suggested the little Casino in Central park as a cool and inviting place for luncheon. Hon-

"I KNOW IT'S SHEER FOLLY," SAID I, "THIS DREAM OF MINE"—

oria agreed. "Aunt Myra considers you such a safe companion," she said demurely.

"It's one of the compensations of being ineligible," said I. For I was ineligible, there was no doubt about that. My income of a few paltry thousands barely sufficed to keep me on the social merry-go-round. And I had added indiscretion to poverty by falling in love with Honoria. Of course no one could have guessed it. Even Honoria's aunt would have scoffed the idea of my being a probable suitor. In fact the very dimness of my prospects enabled me to see more of Honoria than I otherwise could have done. I was considered perfectly safe, for Honoria's circumstances demanded that she make a brilliant match, and I was the least brilliant man of her acquaintance. It was the old, old story of the moth and the star. If the moth was foolish, so much the worse for the moth! And as for the star—Honoria and I had long since decided that love was out of the question. So, on the way to the Casino our conversation was strictly confined to platonic platitudes.

We had luncheon at one of the little tables close by an open window, through which the green reaches of the park were enticing to the eye. Sunshine dappled the leaves with the light and shadow. Squirrels frisked across the grass. The hum of the city sounded far away and indistinct. Now and then a breeze stole in, carrying with it a faint, half woodsy perfume. The mirror across from us reflected Honoria's frills and furbelows, her clear delicate profile and every turn of her graceful head. There were the clink of ice in tall, thin glasses and a gay bubble of festivity and laughter from some of the other tables. Honoria's eyes met mine.

"There are worse places than New York," I observed.

"Oh, what is so rare as a day in town," murmured Honoria.

"I bless the fate which prompted you to leave the seashore and let me have a glimpse of you," said I.

"It wasn't fate; it was dressmakers," said Honoria. She put back her veil with an adorable gesture. "Am I very much burned?" she demanded.

"Only enough to be becoming," said I.

"You're a bit brown yourself, Dick," she observed.

"People who make hay while the sun shines"— I began.

"Ah," said Honoria, "that's just what I was going to ask. Are you progressing well with the heiress?"

"Modesty forbids me to say," I answered. "How's old Croesus?"

"Doing nicely, thanks," laughed Honoria. Then her face grew grave. "Dick," she said, "do you realize that this is the last luncheon we'll have together tete-a-tete?"

"I know," said I, "that our year of camaraderie is over. And it was fun while it lasted, wasn't it, Honoria? All our little walks and talks and drives. And it's got to end because we're afraid of poverty."

"We do love luxury," sighed Honoria.

"We'd be miserable without it," I argued.

"You," went on Honoria, "must marry the heiress in order to obtain a yacht and all the other things you can't possibly get along without."

"While old Croesus can give you a house in town and several in the country, not to mention a box at the opera and gowns of Paris creation, yet when I'm steaming around Gibraltar and you're giving splendid entertainments in your brownstone front I dare say we'll look back on these times we've spent together with a good deal of amusement and some regret. Don't you think so, Honoria?"

But Honoria was engaged in spearing an olive and apparently did not hear me.

"I've often wondered," she said musingly, "how it would seem to be poor. I suppose I'd make my own hats and wear ready made tailor suits and live in a little box of an apartment."

"But even a box of an apartment can be made attractive," said I. "I know of some dingy shops on the east side where one can pick up fascinating old prints and brasses for almost nothing and furniture that is a joy to discover. There's a Tuscany lamp that's waiting to send a cheerful glow over polished wood and the backs of one's favorite books, and there are curious andirons, made solely to reflect the gleam of a small hearthstone—such a hearthstone as I have imagined you sitting by, Honoria, while the snow falls without, and"—

"Some of our friends would give us up," said Honoria hastily.

"We'd find better ones to take their places."

"Our greatest diversion," said Honoria, "would be the theater, and we could go so seldom that it would take us a long time to decide which play we really wanted to see."

"We'd enjoy it all the more," I declared. "And after it was over we'd go off together to same quaint cafe—oh, I know of places that you've never even dreamed of, Honoria—places where struggling poets and artists have carved their names on the tables and where a Hungarian violinist plays, not the catchy music of the concert halls, but things that are heartbreak and rapture and longing all in one. And the people we know will be supping at Sherry's or Delmonico's—all the wealthy, foolish people who haven't found out that life is ashes and faces but a picture gallery and talk a tinkling cymbal, where no love is. Are you listening to me, Honoria?"

"Yes," answered Honoria very low.

"I know it's sheer folly," said I, "this dream of mine. We've talked of it so often and decided that it was impossible. But now that we've come to the parting of the ways, do you think that the other things of life really matter so long as we miss the exquisite joy of being together? Ah, Honoria, I know it's madness—worse than madness—to ask it, but could you care enough to give up luxury for a poor duffer of a fellow who isn't worthy of you and loves you with his whole heart and soul?"

"But the heiress"—

"Oh, d—hang the heiress!"

"Dick!"

"I mean confound her! Honoria, for the last time, will you marry me?"

Honoria's answer was so low that I had to lean across the table to catch it.

"Honoria," I cried, "is it true—do you really mean it?"

"Don't, Dick," said Honoria. "Those people at the other table are watching us. They'll think we are engaged!"

"But so we are!" I cried exultantly. "So we are!"

The Caribou as a Swimmer.

Clad with a coat of oily wool next his skin, the caribou is covered exteriorly with a dense pelage of fine quills. Every caribou, indeed, wears a cork jacket, and when this is prime, the creature seems on the water rather than in the water. No other quadruped that I know swims as high as the caribou. Their speed afloat is so great that it takes the best of canoemen to overtake a vigorous buck. A good paddler is supposed to cover about six miles an hour, so the caribou probably goes five. There are many kinds of woodland and rough country over which the caribou cannot travel so fast as this. What wonder, then, that they are so ready to take to the water as soon as they find it in their course! Mr. Munn assured me that several times he saw caribou swim a broad bay that was in their line, though a trifling deflection would have given them easy walking along the shore to the same point and with but little increase of distance.—Ernest Thompson Seton in Scribner's.

The Terrible Cockatrice.

The explanation of the origin of that remarkable organism, the cockatrice, leaves nothing to be desired as regards accuracy of detail. We are told that "when the cock is past seven years old an egg grows within him, whereat he greatly wonders." We can well imagine the dismay of any well conducted masculine bird of that age on finding himself in such a compromising predicament, but how did he communicate his feelings to the historian? That the embryonic cockatrice had some mysterious power of self advertisement is evident, for we hear further that "a toad privily watches him and examines the nest every day to see if the egg be yet laid. When the toad finds the egg he rejoices much and at length hatches it, bringing forth an animal with the head, neck and breast of a cock and from thence downward the body of a serpent."—Pall Mall Gazette.

How Death Feels.

In a sermon at St. Pancras parish church, the bishop of London gave an indication of his views as to what the sensation of death would be like. He said: "At an operation, when you receive whatever it is that makes you for the time being insensible, you seem to be carried for the moment out of the body. You are, in fact, out of the body. The body is for the time dead. Your spirit, your mind, is perfectly active. I dare say it is the experience of many others that you seem to be swept swiftly under the stars toward your God. When you are out of the body, or seem to be, if only for a few moments, you realize what death will be."—London Telegraph.

For the Campaign

All Democrats Looking to Him to Lead to Victory in 1908

The Democrats of all sections of the United States are turning to Bryan to lead the Democratic victory in 1908. The News and Observer in State and National politics has always stood as the advocate of the same principles which have made Bryan the national leader. Every Democrat in North Carolina ought to read the true Democratic doctrine every day until the November election. The News and Observer preaches that doctrine, and it prints all the news. The best evidence that it is a fine newspaper is that in eleven years its circulation has grown from 2,500 to over 11,000. Send one dollar and get it daily until the November election. Address

COTTON CULTURE NOT A SUCCESS

Efforts at Cultivating the Staple in Jamaica, West India, Have Been Insignificant—The Reason For It.

(Jamaica Gleaner.

Some of the other West Indian islands are doing very well in cotton cultivation, and the new industry seems to have gone there to stay. But in Jamaica the effort in cotton culture which was put forth some three years ago appears to have met with a serious check, and up to now our exports of cotton have been insignificant. For this there are more than one reason. In the first place very few persons have seriously embarked upon cotton cultivation; the thing was more talked about than taken up. Secondly, those who have invested, or have induced others to invest money in cotton planting have suffered severely from the raages of the caterverely from the ravages of the catercrop. Such hindrances are, of course, to be calculated, for when one is starting on a new line, yet in a country like Jamaica they cannot but have a depressing effect. Still, it by no means follows that Jamaica is never going to embark on cotton cultivation. As there is a demand for Sea Island cotton, and as it is certain we can produce it, we cannot bring ourselves to believe that we shall forever let our opportunity lie idle. We must try and discover some means of fighting our insect and other pests. Cotton, as Prof. Wynham Dunstan has pointed out, cannot be grown by persons without considerable experience in cotton growing and picking, and so it would be well for any Jamaica planter who thinks of going in for cotton cultivation to import one or two intelligent men frm the Southern States of America who are accustomed to handling cotton. The expense need not be great; there must be many intelligent Italians or American negroes who would come to Jamaica, if even for a year or two, at a moderate salary. We throw out this hint for what it is worth; meanwhile we are glad to see that Sir Augustus Hemming and Sir Daniel Morris are advertising Jamaica as a field for industrial enterprise. Our late Governor is advising young men with capital to come here and cultivate cotton. We hope this advice will be taken by those who know something about agriculture or will associate themselves with energetic people who know something about it. Nothing can be more pitiful than to see a young stranger come to Jamaica, lose his little capital, and then return home penniless and perhaps soured by disappointment.

Kidney Trouble Attack Wilmington Men and Women, Old and Young Alike.

Kidney ills seize young and old alike—
Quickly come and little warning give.
Children suffer in their early years—
Can't control the kidney secretions.
Girls are languid, nervous, suffer pain
Women worry, can't do daily work.
Robust men have lame anda ching backs.
Old folks, weak, rheumatic, lame,
Endure distressing urinary ills.
The cure for man, for woman, or for child
Is to cure the cause—the kidneys.
Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys
Wilmington testimony guarantees every box.

J. T. Ebert of 515 South 6th st., mattress maker, says: "I used Doan's Kidney Pills in my family. My little girl complained of severe pains in the small of her back, and the kidney secretions were dark and full of brick-dust sediment. We were very much worried about her and when I learned of Doan's Kidney Pills I went up to R. R. Bellamy's drug store and got a box and gave them to her. Since using them she had improved wonderfully and is a different child. Her kidney secretions cleared up, she does not complain of her back, and in fact Doan's Kidney Pills gave her new life. We are very much pleased with them and you can use my name and welcome."

SUBMERGED GUNS.

The Experiment of Firing a Cannon Buried Under Water.

The most curious experiment ever made with a piece of ordnance was at Portsmouth, England. A stage was erected in the harbor within the tide mark. On this an Armstrong gun of the 110 pound pattern was mounted. The gun was then loaded and carefully aimed at a target—all this, of course, during the time of low tide. A few hours later, when the gun and the target were both covered with water to a depth of six feet, the gun was fired by means of electricity. We said "aimed at a target," but the facts are that there were two targets, but only one was erected for this special experiment, the other being the hull of an old vessel, the Griper, which lay directly behind the target and in range of the ball. The target itself was placed only twenty-five feet from the muzzle of the gun. It was composed of oak beams and planks and was twenty-one inches thick.

In order to make the old Griper invulnerable a sheet of boiler plate three inches thick was riveted to the waterlogged hull in direct range with the course the ball was expected to take if not deflected by the water. On all of these—the oaken target, the boiler plates and the old vessel hull—the effect of the shot from the submerged gun was really startling. The wooden target was pierced through and through, and the boiler iron target was broken into pieces and driven into its "backing," the ball passing right on through both sides of the vessel, making a huge hole, through which the water poured in torrents. Taken altogether, the experiment was an entire success, demonstrating, as it did, the feasibility of placing submerged guns in harbors in time of war and doing great damage to the vessels which an enemy might dispatch to such points for the purpose of shelling cities.—London Spectator.

The Sacred Bo Tree.

On the night of Oct. 7, 1887, the tree worshipers of Ceylon met with an irreparable calamity. During one of the worst storms that ever raged on the island their sacred bo tree was thrown to the ground. The oldest written description of this wonderful tree known to exist is that by Fa Hiam, a Chinese historian and traveler, who visited the tree in the year 414 A. D. According to the learned Chinaman, it was then 702 years old, having been planted by King Devinipiatissa in the year 288 before our era began. If the above data be correct, and there is no reason for doubting it, the bo tree was more than 2,175 years old when the storm ended its career on the date mentioned above.

HOSPITAL FOR SICK ANIMALS

Birds, as Well as Horses, Donkeys, Cats and Dogs Received as Patients in the Institution That Was Recently Opened.

A company of ailing horses, cats dogs, birds and a donkey passed Whitsuntide in the quiet wards of the Animals' Hospital, opened by Our Dumb Friends' League a few weeks ago.

It has been found necessary to open a bird ward, owing to the large number of feathered patients brought to the institution. When an Express representative was shown round this ward yesterday he found that a yellow canary had only that morning been allowed a perch once more.

He had been severely clawed by a cat, and one of his legs was so badly mangled that for many days he had been obliged to sit on flannel. Now, perched again, though on one leg, he could find heart to sing, and his case was described as "very hopeful."

In the equine wards is an old gray horse belonging to a green grocer. The animal's knees have been badly bruised by a fall, and he will be a patient for some days. There is also a brown cab horse belonging to a man who has only one cab and one horse, and who is, therefore, now unable to pursue his daily work.

Many such cases are treated at the hospital, and the question is being considered whether a horse and a donkey shall be purchased and lent to unforutnatee tradesmen whose one animal falls ill. If sufficient subscriptions for this purpose can be raised the venture will certainly be made.

The little donkey, suffering from a badly torn knee affords another example of an owner's hardship. A poor costermonger had saved up 2 pounds 15s to buy the animal, and when it met with its accident he found his living gone for several weeks.

Over the pens of the dogs in the canine ward are such notices as the following:

"Fox terrier, Daisy; tumor on thigh; diet, beef tea, bread, biscuits, milk, liver."

"Brown spaniel, Rover, belonging to brickylayer. Ulcerated foot."

"Irish terrier Pat. Tumor in right shoulder. Diet, sheep's head, biscuit, broth."

The dog patients receive more visitors than any others. They are all owned by poor people, and some of these call half a dozen times a day to inquire after their pets.

Last week a very pathetic incident occurred in connection with a large mongrel dog which had been run over and had its hind legs crushed by an omnibus. A weeping woman carried the mangled body of the dog to the hospital. She was told that nothing could be done to save her pet, and that the kindest thing would be to destroy it in the lethal chamber.

She pleaded that she might be allowed to take the dog home for a few minutes, so that her little daughter, who was ill, might see it once more, as the two were very great friends. So, crying bitterly, she took away her dog for the child to give its head one last pat, and then it was conveyed to the Dogs' Home at Batteersea to be destroyed.

TELESCOPES.

The Difference Between Reflecting and Refracting Kinds.

A very pretty little experiment which illustrates the two methods of forming an optical image and by way of corollary illustrates the essential difference between refracting and reflecting telescopes may be performed by any one who possesses a reading glass and a magnifying hand mirror. In a room that is not too brightly illuminated pin a sheet of white paper on the wall opposite to a window that by preference should face the north or away from the position of the sun. Taking first the reading glass, hold it between the window and the wall parallel to the sheet of paper and a foot or more distant from the latter. By moving it to and fro a little you will be able to find a distance corresponding to the focal length of the lens, at which a picture of the window is formed on the paper. This picture, or image, will be upside down because the rays of light cross at the focus. By moving the glass a little closer to the wall you will cause the picture of the window to become indistinct, while a beautiful image of the houses, trees or other objects of the outdoor world beyond will be formed upon the paper. We thus learn that the distance of the image from the lens varies with the distance of the object whose image is formed. In precisely a similar manner an image is formed at the focus of the object glass of a refracting telescope.

Take next your magnifying or concave mirror, and, detaching the sheet of paper from the wall, hold it nearly in front of the mirror between the latter and the window. When you have adjusted the distance to the focal length of the mirror, you will see an image of the window projected on the paper. By varying the distance as before you will be able to produce at will pictures of nearer or more remote objects. It is in this way that images are formed at the focus of the mirror of a reflecting telescope.

Votes and Kisses.

In the letters of William Cowper, the poet, is an interesting description of some old fashioned political campaign tactics in England: "We were sitting yesterday after dinner, the two ladies and myself, very composedly and without the least apprehension of any such intrusion in our snug parlor, one lady knitting, the other netting, and the gentlemen winding worsted, when to our unspeakable surprise a mob appeared before the window, a smart rap was heard at the door, the boys hallooed and the maid announced Mr. Grenville. Puss—one of the tame hares—was unfortunately let out of her box, so that the candidate, with all his good friends at his heels, was refused admittance at the grand entry and referred to the back door as the only possible way of approach. In a minute the yard, the kitchen and the parlor were filled. Mr. Grenville, advancing toward me, shook me by the hand with a degree of cordiality that was extremely seducing. When the conference ended, Mr. Grenville squeezed my hand again, kissed the ladies and withdrew. He kissed likewise the maid in the kitchen and seemed upon the whole a most loving, kissing, kind hearted gentleman."

CHLOROPHYLL.

To This Substance Is Due the Coloring of Plants.

Chlorophyll is perhaps the most important coloring substance in the world, for upon this substance depend the characteristic activity of plants, the synthesis of complex compounds from carbon dioxide and water process, upon which the existence of all living things is ultimately conditioned. Only in a very few unimportant forms devoid of chlorophyll can the synthesis of complex from simple compounds or from the elements be accomplished. The function of chlorophyll may only be comprehended when its chief physical properties are understood. These may be best illustrated by placing a gram of chopped leaves of grass or geranium in a few cubic centimeters of strong alcohol for an hour.

Such a solution will be of a bright, clear green color, and when the vessel containing it is held in such a manner that the sunlight is reflected from the surface of the liquid it will appear blood red, due to its property of fluorescence, that of changing the wave length of the rays of light of the violet and of the spectrum in such a manner as to make them coincide with those of the red end. It is by examination of light which has passed through a solution of chlorophyll, however, that the greatest insight into its physical properties may be gained. If such a ray of light is passed through a prism and spread out on a screen, it may be seen that there are several large intervals of dark bands in the spectrum. The rays of light which would have occupied these spaces have been absorbed by the chlorophyll and converted into heat and other forms of energy. This energy is directly available to the protoplasm containing the chlorophyll, and by means of it the synthesis of complex substance may be accomplished.

According to Horsepower.

A young motorist, endeavoring to convince a country innkeeper that the decay of coaching was more than compensated for by the spread of motoring as a pastime, exclaimed, as a final argument, that his car was of forty horsepower, "the equal, sir, of ten relays of coach horses."

The next morning he read in his bill, "To feeding and stabling, 80 shillings."

He asked the landlord for an explanation.

"The charge for 'osses is 2 shillin' a 'ead, sir," was the reply. "That machine of yours is equal to forty 'osses, which is 80 shillin'."—London Express.

Onions.

Onions are almost the best nervine known. No medicine is so useful in cases of nervous prostration, and there is nothing else that will so quickly relieve and tone a wornout system. Onions are useful in all cases of coughs, colds and influenza, in consumption, insomnia, hydrophobia, scurvy, gravel and kindred liver complaints. Eaten every other day, they soon have a clearing and whitening effect on the complexion.

CHAMPIONSHIP GOES TO GANS

The Fight Was Awarded to Him in the Forty-second Round on a Foul Blow

BEST BOUT IN MANY YEARS

Gans Put Up a Remarkable Fight—Nelson Employed Rough Tactics all Through the Contest—About 200 Women Present.

(By Wire to The Morning Star.)

Goldfield, Nev., September 3.—Battling Nelson lost today's fight by fouling Joe Gans in the forty-second round of the best and longest fight seen in many years. Both men were tired when the fight ended, but Gans was apparently the stronger. He was away ahead on points and had smashed and cut Nelson all through the fight without being severely hurt himself.

Shortly after the forty-second round began the men were in a clinch. Nelson had his head on Gans shoulder and his arm down. Several times he hit Gan's below the belt, apparently feeling for a vital spot.

At last he drew back his right arm and hit Gans a vicious blow square in the groin. The colored boy sank to his knees and rolled over on his back. Referee Siler without hesitation ordered Nelson to his corner and awarded the fight to Gans on a foul.

Siler's Decision Approved.

Siler's decision received almost unanimous approval. The foul was so obvious that not even men who had bet on Nelson could say that it had not been committed. All through the long contest Nelson had employed rough tactics. He repeatedly butted Gans.

Siler was loudly cheered as he left the ring, as was Gans, who was carried to his dressing room. Nelson and his seconds were hissed as they departed. All Nelson would say was that Gans was tired and quit.

Gans' ight Hand Broke.

Gans, in many ways, put up a remarkable fight. His endurance surprised eery one. His work was the more wonderful when it is known that in the thirty-third round he broke the right hand. Never after that did he strike a blow with it, with the exception of a few short arm jolts, while clinching. He did all his work with the left hand.

Gans said after the fight that Nelson intentionally fouled. He said he could whip Nelson as he was comparatvely strong and Nelson was growing weaker all the time. "Larry" Sullivan announced for Gans that he would fight Nelson in two weeks in another fight as he was sure he could whip him and did not want to take advantage of the foul. It is hardly possible, however, that the men will meet again in that time.

Nelson's Showed ndurance.

The first fifteen rounds of the fight were fast. After that the men slowed up and only at intervals was there a rally. Although Gans was far ahead of Nelson in points and most of the time looked like a sure winner Nelson put up a wonderful fight on his side. The endurance and recuperative powers shown by Nelson were extraordinary. Time and again Gans would jolt him on the jaw sending the Dane back. His knees would bend and his eyes become glazed, but he always fell into a clinch and held on and would then come back fighting as hard as ever in his peculiar style. The minutes rest at the corner always did him good and he would come up fresh and strong.

On several occasion Nelson apparently had the advantage. He would hit Gans as they broke from a clinch and the colored boy would hang on and wrestle.

Gans was the favorite with the people. His behavior won the admiration of the Goldfield people and they showed it.

The attendance was about five thousand although estimates were made as high as 8,500.

The Goldfield Athletic Club arrangements were perfect. There was not a hitch of any kind, and the fight could be seen from any portion of the arena. About 200 women were present.

NAVAL PAGEANT AT OYSTER BAY

Greatest Fleet of American Warships Ever Assembled Reviewed by President Roosevelt—Every State Was Represented by a Ship of War.

By Wire to the Morning Star.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 3.—On the waters of Long Island sound within view of Sagamore Hill, the President of the United States reviewed today the greatest fleet of American warships ever assembled. There was a ship of war for every State, 5 in all ranging in size from magnificent 16,000 ton Louisiana, just completed to the fleet little torpedo boat and the the submarines and including one troopship and colliers. In three columns there stretched along the sound twelve battleships, four armored cruiser, four protected cruisers, four monitors, six destroyers, six torpedo boats, three submarines, a troop ship, and five auxiliaries.

The splendid fleet underwent the ceremony of inspection by the President of the United States. As the Mayflower dropped her anchor at the head of the beet on the completion of the review, the President descended from th bridge, his face wreathed in smils and enthusiastically throwing his arms around the shoulders of a group of Senators and Representatives, exclaimed: "Any man who fails to be patriotically inspired by such a sight as this is a mighty poor American, and every American who has seen it ought to be a better American for it."

President oosevelt had a great day. It was his day throughout. In going from the Weblen Roosevelt pier to the Mayflower in an open launch in the morning he was drenched by rain and spray, and the little launch was tossed about in the roughest manner by the unusually heavy sea which the stiff wind kicked up. The moment he put his foot on the deck of the Mayflower, as if by pre-arranged signal, the rain suddenly stopped and before the 21 gun salute, which welcomed him had been completed the sun was shining. From that time until the review was finished not a cloud marred the supectacle.

When the Mayflower reached the head of the column to begin the review shortly after 11 o'clock, the fleet was completely surrounded by fully 500 boats large enough to weather the blow, and loaded with sightseers to their full capacity. A large number of three deck steamers each carrying thousands of passengers, ran down from New York and others came from Connecticut ports and towns on the Long Island shore. These all maintained perferct order not a boat breaking through the cordon of naval launches viewing the fleet . The effect was to set the navy in a huge frame and emphasize the grandeur of the display.

The reception and luncheon which President and Mrs. Roosevelt assisted by Secretary Bonaparte and Mrs Bonaparte tendered to the three ear Admirals, and the commanding officers of all the ships after the review was a picturesque feature of the occasion.

The reception and luncheon occupied an hour and then the President left the Mayflower with Secretary Bonaparte and Secretary Loeb to pay visits to the three admirals and to the troopship Yankee just in with a detachment of marines from Santo Domingo.

After these calls the President returned to the Mayflower where he remained with his guests during the afternoon and evening. Dinner was served aboard and the illumination of the fleet at night fall, which was one of the most impressive features of the review, was enjoyed by those on board until late in the evening. The Mayflower then steamed inside the harbor and the party was put off in launches.

The excursion fleet dispersed before nightfall and the great crowds which had sought Oyster Bay during the day climbed to places of vantagees on surrounding heights to view the illumination and play of the powerful searchlights of the fleet.

BRYAN IN DETROIT.

Welcomed by a Large Applauding Crowd—Made Speech Along Labor Lines.

(By Wire to The Morning Star.)

Detroit, September 3.—When W. J. Bryan arrived with his party of about one hundred in Detroit, at noon, today, over the Grand Trunk, he passed to his carriage through a cheering, applauding crowd, and escorted by the reception committee, was driven to the Hotel Cadillac where Mayor Geo. P. Codd delivered a formal address of welcome.

Immediately after, the party sat down to luncheon, after which they were driven in automobiles to the fair grounds where a very large crowd greeted the ebraskan's approach with applause and cheers. The party was driven to the band stand in the grove where Bryan was to speak. Near by all in the immediate vicinity of the stand, bore the marks of the toiler. It was to these Bryan's address, which was along labor lines, seemeed directed.

Citizens of Abbeville Did Not Like Language of Thomas H. Amos.

Columbia, S. C., September 3.—Thomas H. Amos, colored, president of Harbison college, co-educational institution for negroes at Abbeville, supported by the Northern Presbyterian church, was waited upon recently by citizens of Abbeville and requested to leave the town on account of language used in his last commencefent address. He said negro women had brought white women to the kitchens and hoped that they would soon bring them to the washtub. Amos telegraphed from Baltimore today that one of the directors would soon arrive at Abbeville to take charge of the institution.

REGATTA A SUCCESS.

Not a Single Accident Occurred to Mar the Sport.

Washington, Sept. 3.—Under the most favorable weather and water conditions and with the number of entries the largest of any similar event in recent years, the annual regatta of the Middle States Rowing Association under the auspices of the Potomac River Regatta Association was held here today. The seventeen events all were rowed on schedule time and ther was not a single accident to mar this afternoon's sport.

Except the quarter mile dash and the several events in which the eights took part in the races for a mile straight away, the eights being required to cover a mile and a half straight away.

The prettiest race of the day was that of intermediate eight-oared shells which was won by the Fairmount Rowing Association crew.

SITUATION IN CUBA.

President Palma Issues Statement—No Further Engagements.

(By Wire to The Morning Star.)

Havana, Sept. 3.—President Palma in an interview tonight with the Associated Press put an end to any expectation that he would make any concessions whatever to the rebels beyond the offer of pardon already extended. The President said he could not possibly make such concessions either now or hereafter and it is not certain in any event what the government could offer beyond what already has been done.

Concerning American intervention Palma said:

"That matter has not been under consideration because we believe we can control the situation without any outside aid. We shall put down this senseless rebellion by force and we feel amply confident of our ability to do it."

No fighting of consequence is reported. The principal engagement reported today is one in which Colonel Valle, commanding a force which sailed a week ago from Cienfuegos, encountering this morning at Cumanayuga, Santa Clara province, a force of insurgents, who he scattered, taking ten prisoners, arms and horses.

ARKANSAS ELECTION.

(By Wire to The Morning Star.)

Little Rock, Ark., Sept. 3.—In the biennial election in Arkansas today for tSate and county officers, partial returns received by the Arkansas Gazette tonight indicate that Congressfan John S. Little, Democratic nominee for Governor will have a majority of 5,0,000 over John I. Worthington, Republican. Estimates tonight are that of the 135 members of the State Senate and House, at least 125 will be Democrats. The Democratic State nominees other than for Governor had no opposition.

One of the largest crowds in the history of Kentucky racing witnessed the opening of the $300,000 Douglas Park track at Louisville, Ky., yesterday. Woman With Whom He Had Wasted Money Gave Information on Him—Had Just Deposited $12,000—Reward of $5,000.

(By Wire to The Morning Star.)

Chicago, September 3.—A cablegram to Chicago Tribune from Tangier, Morocco, today announces the capture in that city of Paul O. Stensland, the president and manager of the Milwaukee Avenue State Bank, which closed its doors on August 6.

The arrest was made by a representative of the Tribune and Assistant Etate's Attorney Holten, of this city who have been on the trail of Stensland since August 13. Stensland had many friends among women of this city upon whom he was accustomed to spend much money and one of these, feeling that she had not been treated by him with due consideration, came to the Tribune a few days after his flight with information regarding the direction in which he had gone.

Her information was somewhat indefinite but investigation proved its probable accuracy. The Tribune correspondent and Assistant State's Attorney Holton arrived in Tangier about one hour after Stensland had left it for a trip to the east coast of Africa. It was ascertained that he had deposited $12,000 in a bank of Tangier and believing that he would soon return the two men decided to await him there. During the period intervening between his flight and his arrest Stensland has been going under the name of P. Olsen, of Norway.

A reward of $5,000 has been ordered for the arrest of Stensland and since his departure from Chicago many detectives had been on the hunt for him.

State's Attorney Healy stated today that there is no doubt that Stensland will be brought back and that the Sultan of Morrocco would give him up if the United States asks for him.

Cotton Exports Show Increase of $21,000,000 Over Last Year.

Washington, Sept. 2.—"Cotton is king in the export record of the United States for the fiscal year just ended." This is the introductory sentence of a statement just issued by the Department of Commerce and Labor. Continuing, the statement says:

"Total value of raw cotton exporteed for the first time crossed the $400,000,000 line and exceeded by far the value of any other article of merchandise sent out of the country. The exports of breadstuffs of all kinds aggregated but $186,000,000, those of provisions but $211,000,000, and those of iron and steel manufactures but $161,000,000.

"The value of cotton exported has increased very rapidly during the last five years. It was not until 1901 that it crossed the $300,000,000 line, and in a short five-year period it has grown to more than $400,000,000, or an increase of about 33 per cent. This growth is due in part to an increase in the quantity exported, but in part also to the advance in price, since the quantity exported in 1906 was about 700,000,000 pounds less than in 1905, while the value was $21,000,000 more than in 1905.

Messages from Mud Lick, Ky., mines say twelve miners are entombed in the Mud Lick mines. It is believed the men are dead. A large party of rescures are at work removing the dirt which blocks the passage to the interior of the mine. It will require 34 hours to remove this dirt.
